The opportunities we have at RAMAN Lab under Rajesh Sir, be it any field, are probably the best one can have at UG level. These aren't opportunities that can be found online. We get to work on probably the coolest, top-tier projects (some of which are so sensitive that they can't even be disclosed here!) from every field.

But you have to prove your worth before you can work at the RAMAN lab. Nobody will allow you just because you want to work. You have to prove that you can do things which this far none of you have shown. This note is for everyone. At this point, nobody from your year is worthy enough to be allowed in RAMAN Lab. The only students at UG level allowed in RAMAN Lab are from Zine.

Projects are not completed because they are interesting, they are completed because it is a necessity. Not everything in projects and a club can be according to your interest. Someone has to do the uninteresting part too if you want to finish the project. You guys couldn't even get the posters printed in time and we could already see the results of that in the absence of participation. Similarly, the work that you are "not interested" in is also part of your work. It is your responsibility to finish the work.

Whatever you have done till date, is just preparing you for real projects but all you guys do is miss deadlines like it means nothing. I can't think of the last time we received meeting notes from your side. We do not want to force work on anyone. If you are not interested, please leave the group immediately. We are not ready to mentor a team that is not interested in doing anything. Your interest regarding things was pretty clear from the ppt you put forward. A lack of communication and effort is a major thing that shines about you guys as a team.

How many times do we have to remind you of things in the group only for your entire year to ignore our messages? We are not desperate to mentor you. Your entire year could be dissolved if we don't see the effort and response.

You guys are apparently working all night but there is never any significant progress. Is Zine even a priority for you guys? You are supposed to be the best of the lot. You are expected to put in the effort. If there are team conflicts try to resolve them. If you fail to resolve them, discuss them with us.

Team projects, here at Zine, cannot be completed without a team effort. Team effort means standing up for each other during times of need, it means being on the same page, teaching each other a few things, learning from each other, brainstorming on ideas, finding mistakes in ideas, and then reaching the correct feasible approach. Team effort means being each others' counterparts so that the project can be completed on time. It means owning up to the team and the work, your work. When you'll work as a team, only then will you find the fun in working. Otherwise, it will be just another burden on you. You will hastily try to complete it, and it won't benefit you at all. You won't learn anything out of it.

The last thing we want to say is, if you can work honestly here you will realize that Zine is the best thing that can happen to anyone in this college.

PS: The elimination process for your team is going to start very soon. :)
